More than 300 Omega Boutiques are now located at the world's best shopping addresses. Other high-profile events and partnerships generated positive media coverage throughout the year. With its slogan "Elegance is an attitude", Longines continued to support young athletes. Diverse activities around the world showcased the brand's unique heritage of tradition and innovation, highlighting lots of watchmaking firsts, a relentless pioneering spirit and immense global presence. The first mechanical movement ever made on a fully-automated assembly line, the SISTEM51 packs unprecedented technological innovation into an automatic movement with only 51 parts. The brand also gave its name to the Longines Rising Star Award, an FEI Award given to a rider, 14 years of age, who has shown exceptional talent and sporting commitment to the world of equestrianism. Thanks to its 20 strong brands and their attractive products, further expansion of the distribution and retail network, the investment made in almost all production areas as well as an extremely healthy equity and financial situation, the Swatch Group is in an excellent position for both the future and for long-term growth. In flat racing, the Prix Longines Future Racing Stars, open to young jockeys, was run in conjunction with the Prix de Diane Longines at Chantilly. Her Royal Highness Princess Haya, President of the FEI, and Nayla Hayek, Chair of the Swatch Group Board of Directors, co-signed the contract at an official ceremony held in Lausanne. Key Collections 2013 The innovative spirit that swept through Swatch in 2013 brought bright colors and creative designs in the Spring Summer collection and trending themes and variations to Fall Winter: colors, patterns, textures and shapes that captured culture emerging from the streets. Its launch was accompanied by a spectacular TV commercial shot in South Africa with a soundtrack from British pop singer and Swatch Mika. The Conquest Classic collection, presented at Baselworld, reflects the brand's passion for sport in the same way as the chronographs it has produced for racing enthusiasts and jockeys since 1881. Omega has once again expanded its global network of monobrand boutiques. Another year of very positive growth and the world's largest retail network in the Swiss watch industry are clear proof of Tissot's success. The revolutionary technology has been introduced at several press events scheduled in all major markets. An award-winning advertising campaign was complemented by Co-Axial exhibitions in the city around the world. This is the final recognition and confirmation of the quality of Tissot products. After four years of strong and dynamic growth by the Swatch Group, as well as the entire Swiss watch industry, steady and solid growth is expected in 2014. Visibility in some of the world's major sporting events is further proof of the brand's appeal. In 2013 Longines extended its support to downhill skiing with the Longines Future Ski Champions, with young skiers taking part in a giant slalom on the official race course in Val d'Aoste. The year was characterized by innovation, both inside and outside the watch, and included the presentation of 18K Sedna gold, a patented alloy whose gold red color is particularly durable. Omega's exclusive Co-Axial technology has once again been the cornerstone of the brand's product strategy. Parisian. Court. In June, Swatch emerged from Scuba Libre, the new collection designed for urban seafarers and water sports enthusiasts. Financial Review - Outlook All brands have had a auspicious start. It launched the coaxial calibre 8508, the world's first truly anti-magnetic mechanical watch movement, solving a problem that had puzzled watchmakers for centuries. 100% made Swiss, the first four models were launched exclusively in Switzerland in week 51. Longines has continued to achieve market growth and has increased its support for the equestrian world through several partnerships. Links to golf, swimming, sailing and athletics added to a constantly strong press presence in the world of sports. In the first month of the year, sales of both watches and jewelry were very good. A particularly proud moment was the achievement of the first and second place in the famous Concours International de Chronométrie Trié. The first prize was won for the second consecutive time in the classic category. OMEGA Trends In 2013, Omega demonstrated its continued commitment to meeting the greatest challenges in watchmaking. Dedicated products, events and roadshows have brought a dynamic past and present to life for everyone to enjoy.
